

FSU Center for Autism & Related Disabilities

Parents' Place: Exploring Sensory Challenges and Strategies

Everyone experiences and processes sensory information differently. For children with autism, unique sensory sensitivities and preferences can create challenges in everyday situations. Join us for this two-part series as we discuss these challenges along with sensory strategies to support children's participation and learning at home and school.

FSU CARD is dedicated to providing individuals with autism or related disabilities, their families, and professionals who work with them, free consultation, resources, and educational support to build knowledge, confidence, infrastructure, and sustainability within the community.
